- Simply give the students a set of cards and ask them to match the opposites to each other, it could also be used to play the “old maid” card game (see next page for instructions on that
- The images are high quality so can also be used for posters, flash cards or displays on word walls.
- You could even print them twice and play snap

OLD MAID RULES

- Sometimes called Odd One Out. Players pull cards from one another's hands, trying to make pairs. The player left with the unmatched Making English Fun card loses.
- Starting with the dealer, each player then takes a turn fanning out their hands so that the player to their left can draw one card.
- The player must not be allowed to see the other player's hand.
- Play continues in this fashion. As players make pairs in their hand, they put them face up on the table.
- Each player is trying to get rid of his cards as fast as possible. The player left holding the unmatched card, the Making English Fun Logo, loses.
- Though its hard, players should not let out WHOOPS of joy if someone picks the Making English fun card from their hand :P!!!
